Where it goes

Two converted clients, as fast as possible

That is the whole job right now. Not a pipeline, not a brand, not a marketing programme - two businesses that were not Otis clients before, and are Otis clients after. Everything after Part One is the plan for what happens next.

WHAT COUNTS AS CONVERTED

- A job booked, delivered and invoiced - not a quote issued or a promising conversation
- A place on a backup list counts as a foothold, not as a client, until the first call-out lands

WHY TWO, AND NOT TWENTY

- Capacity is 3-5 medium recurring contracts, or 2 large daily facilities, plus unlimited one-off
- Selling more than can be delivered costs reviews - and reviews are the constraint on everything else

Why the rest of this exists. Two clients won by luck repeat nothing. Two clients won by a method can be repeated next month, and the month after - which is the difference between a good week and a business that grows.

Thirty-seven businesses are already lined up

Not a target list to be built - a list that exists, researched, scored and loaded. The two clients come out of these.

WHERE THEY ARE

- Dollard-des-Ormeaux 12 and Pointe-Claire 11 carry most of it, then Kirkland, Beaconsfield and Dorval
- Eight sectors: schools 7, kindergartens 7, daycares 6, offices 6, property managers 4, clinics 4, gyms 3

THE CLOCK ON IT

- 36 of the 37 run on pre-winter floor care, and that reason to buy expires on 1 November
- After that the list has to be re-sourced against new reasons. That is the real deadline on the two clients

Nobody wins a cleaning contract cold

Most businesses already have a cleaner. Winning a contract cold means displacing them, which needs a trigger nobody can manufacture. So we go in sideways - through two doors that need no displacement at all.

ROUTE 1

The one-off job

Strip and wax, post-construction, deep clean, move-out. Additive work the current cleaner does not do, so nobody has to be sacked for Otis to be hired.

It is a paid trial in both directions. The buyer risks nothing, and Otis gets inside the building where the standard is watched rather than claimed.

ROUTE 2

The backup list

"Put us on your list for when your cleaner does not turn up." No budget, no decision, no displacement - the easiest yes in the industry.

When the current cleaner no-shows, Otis is the call. The comparison gets made for the buyer instead of argued at them.

A one-off job is never the end of the story. Every completed job opens the contract conversation - see Part Four.

Four one-off services, ranked by how well they convert cold

1

Floor stripping, waxing and sealing

THE LEAD OFFER

Montreal salt destroys hard floors, and the window to seal is before the season, not after. It gives a cold approach a real reason to act now - and Otis does floor care in-house where a lot of competitors subcontract.

2

Post-construction and post-renovation

DEADLINE-DRIVEN

A site must be clean for handover, so the urgency is real and the buyer is a contractor rather than a facilities manager.

3

Deep clean and high-dusting

SEASONAL

Post-summer timing. The natural fit for schools, kindergartens and daycares.

4

Commercial move-in / move-out

TRIGGERED

New tenancy. Commercial only.

No deposit. Net-30 is the commercial norm, and asking for one marks Otis as unusual at the moment it needs to look standard. No price before a walkthrough. The market runs 15-30 cents per square foot; the published floor of 6 cents sits below it and anchors a buyer low.

One sheet, five tabs, forty-six columns

Otis-Lead-Tracker is the single source of truth for the pipeline. A Google Sheet, because Otis already pay for Workspace - so it costs nothing more and opens on any device.

Read me

The strategy in one page, so anyone opening it cold understands what they are looking at

Compliance pack

What must be true before a quote can close - insurance, CNESST, the decret

Where to look

The ranked source list, so the next sourcing run never starts from scratch

Leads

The 37 rows, and every column below

Pipeline

The scoreboard, calculated. Nobody reports anything by hand

NOBODY HAS TO REMEMBER WHOSE JOB A FIELD IS

- Blue columns are filled by the sourcing run
- Amber columns are filled by hand, after a call
- Grey columns are calculated by the sheet itself

IT SCORES AND POLICES ITSELF

- Six points decide the grade: hard floors, a live trigger, in-scope sector, inside the corridor, a named contact with a direct phone, the right size
- A lead flips to STALE - refresh the day its reason to buy expires

Thirty-seven rows, and what they add up to

WHAT THE ROWS SAY

- Offer: strip and wax 21, deep clean 10, backup list 5, recurring contract 1
- Route in: call 19, email 13, walk-in 4, via a property manager 1
- Evidence: 37 of 37 rows carry a source and a date collected. The legal position is complete, with no exceptions
- 18 leads have a published email. 19 do not, so they are phone or walk-in only - correct, not a gap
- Only 7 rows name a person, and 16 more name a role. Turning roles into names is the fastest lift available, and it happens on the first call

Three tools keeping it honest, three more ways in

The tracker holds the pipeline. These keep filling it, and keep it from rotting - all of them at no running cost.

The sourcing skill

Turns "source Otis leads" into a full run across all eight sectors with minimums, a dated reason to buy per lead, scoring, evidence and the outreach copy

The chasers

A script on the sheet. Daily it flags expiring reasons to buy, untouched A-leads and rows missing evidence. Weekly it emails a digest

The SEAO watch

Public tender data - the only place you can see who currently cleans a public body, for how much, and when that contract was awarded

Referrals

One ask to each of the three existing site managers. Daycare and school administrators know each other, so the reach is wider than three conversations

Local groups

"Can anyone recommend a commercial cleaner" posts in West Island Facebook groups. That is inbound, not cold - the highest-priority lead type there is

Event partnerships

Event companies produce repeat, scheduled demand with no cleaner to displace. One agency relationship yields many jobs

The partners work the phone - B2B cold calls in Quebec are exempt from the National DNCL. Email is the follow-up and the paper trail; the phone is the closer.

Three regimes, and one of them sells for you

CASL

$1M / $10M PENALTIES

The burden of proof sits on the sender. No lead is emailed without a traceable source and a date. If the address cannot be traced to a page the business published, it is phone-only - 19 of the 37 are.

Competition Act s.74.011

SENDER IDENTITY

A false or misleading sender name is reviewable conduct, and the defence that nobody was actually deceived has been removed. Mail goes from a real address under a real name.

CNESST and the decret

YOUR BEST ARGUMENT

The joint-liability rule makes the CLIENT responsible for an underpriced rival's unpaid wages. That is not a burden - it is the strongest line against a cheaper competitor, and it opens on their exposure, not on Otis.

Two working rules that follow from this: contact-data brokers are never a source, because they sell addresses the business never published - and a published address that is not the facilities buyer, like an admissions inbox, is a call rather than an email.

Five things, and outreach can start

Most of this is under an hour in total. Nothing goes out until it lands.

1	A dedicated sending address quotes@ on your own domain	Role-based, so it transfers and stays yours. It also keeps the results separate from info@, the address your paying clients already use.	$0 as an alias
2	DKIM enabled In Google Workspace	No key is published today, and unauthenticated cold mail lands in spam.	Free, 15 minutes
3	DMARC published At p=none	No record exists. This is what protects the deliverability of the address your existing clients write to.	Free, 15 minutes
4	Your rate card for one-off work Strip and wax, deep clean, post-construction, high-dusting	We cannot quote without it, and we will not guess at it.	Free
5	Written authorisation Plus an approved signature block	The law requires every message to say who it is sent on behalf of.	Free, 10 minutes

The clock starts when these land - not when this deck is delivered.

Six to close a job, five to be taken seriously

A JOB CANNOT CLOSE WITHOUT

- Proof of insurance, with the limits stated - facilities managers ask before letting anyone into a building
- CNESST standing, and whether you hold an attestation de conformite
- Your weekly capacity for one-off work, and how fast you can mobilise
- Who issues quotes, and how quickly
- A named person who answers when a prospect calls back
- Crew composition under decret article 2.03(2)

AND TO BE BELIEVED ON THE DOORSTEP

- Before and after photos - there are none visible anywhere today, and they are the strongest proof one-off work has
- Permission and introductions to ask your three existing sites for referrals
- Sign-off on a referral thank-you - a discount on that site's next month
- A list of every past and present client, for the review push in Part Four
- Your availability for on-site assessments

Turning jobs into contracts, and nine reviews into twenty

EVERY COMPLETED JOB OPENS A CONTRACT

- The conversation is with somebody who has already watched the standard happen in their own building
- It is written into the outreach as a step, not left to whoever remembers - a job delivered and never followed by that conversation is a job done, not a client won
- The tracker records contract stage and monthly value, so the number is visible rather than hoped for
- Recurring work is retention and expansion. It is where this leads, not where it starts

THE REVIEW PUSH - NINE TOWARD TWENTY

- Every review is five stars already - the hard part is done. The gap is volume, not quality
- Ask every past and present client, systematically, and ask at completion every time from now on
- Not staff, friends or family: Google prohibits reviews from anyone with a conflict of interest, and removals are visible at this volume
- Never attach the referral discount to a review - an incentive in exchange for one is prohibited outright
- Steer the wording toward commercial: janitorial, contract, our building

Four streams, none of them decided yet

None of these is in the current pipeline. They are raised here so the choice is yours rather than left unsaid.

Event venues and agencies

Repeat, scheduled work with no cleaner to displace. The closest to what is already running, and the first worth opening.

Contractor relationships

Post-construction as a standing arrangement rather than job by job. One contractor produces recurring one-off work indefinitely.

Specialist add-ons

Windows, carpet extraction, pressure washing, waste. Expansion revenue from clients already won - no acquisition at all.

Residential

Open, and not yet discussed. Your existing reviews already describe residential work, so the demand is there without any marketing. It is kept out of the commercial pipeline for now only so the commercial positioning lands cleanly - not because anyone has ruled it out.

Where this is in six to twelve months

A direction, not a promise - and every line of it has a number today to be measured against.

THE BASELINE WE START FROM

- Google sent 65 visitors to the website in twelve months - about five a month. That search position is unclaimed rather than lost
- Nearly a third of the recorded "visitors" are automated, and the admin logins count too, so the real audience is roughly one person a day
- Nine reviews, and a Services section on the profile that is still empty
- These are not failings. They are the numbers everything from here gets compared against

WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE IF THE HABITS HOLD

- Two or three recurring contracts against a ceiling of five, with the one-off work still running alongside
- Reviews near twenty, reading commercial, and a profile that is being found rather than only existing
- A named person on most rows instead of seven, because every call adds one
- Work arriving from referrals and local groups, not only from the phone
- And the argument for building inbound properly made with numbers instead of instinct

Outbound is not only how the first clients are won. It is the research that makes everything after it work.
